CENTRE FOR WOMEN'S DEVELOPMENT STUDIES NEW DELHI

About Us

CWDS is a research and advocacy institution engaged with and committed to women's rights and to the discipline of women's and gender studies. Since 1984, CWDS is recognized as one of the research institutes supported by the Indian Council of Social Science Research (ICSSR).

CWS,MLSU is one of prominent center in the state of Rajasthan, offering academic courses in Women's Studies. It functions on the four-fold aspect of the discipline with Academics, Research, Documentation and Extension Activity.

Concept Note

The main purpose of the first session is to guide the students for locating and searching women's studies online resources and databases effectively, and to provide links of major online databases. In addition, we will also demonstrate the OPAC (Online Public Access Catalogue) of CWDS library which is a comprehensive collection on women's studies and always useful as a starting point for searching documents on the subject in general. We will also demonstrate the Knowledge Gateway which is a virtual knowledge center on Women's Studies for the South Asia Region.

Over the last few years, managing references manually is becoming difficult. But there are various software packages to manage references and citations. These are known as Reference Management Software (RMS) or citation management software, or bibliographic management software. In the second session, we will give an introduction to all available RMS and will explain how to use Zotero.

What's Zotero? It's free citation management software that can organize research for multiple projects with multiple formats (books, articles, webpages, and video). It integrates with Microsoft Office and Open Office, and can create an alphabetized bibliography in your choice of style,
